SAVES, DEALS AND DISCOUNTS FROM AND FOR ORANGE COUNTY SHOPPERS

MARLA KNOWS

ANA VENEGAS, THE REGISTER

A costume swap with friends is a good way to save money.

Five ways to save on Halloween

- Free pumpkins: Get a free pumpkin (kids 12 and younger only), see carving and cooking demonstrations, a puppet show, navigate a hay maze, petting zoo and more at the Irvine Great Park Pumpkin Harvest on Saturday, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Admission is free. Parking costs $10. Orange County Great Park, 6950 Marine Way, Irvine. If you can't make this event, keep your eyes peeled for other free pumpkin events in your town.
- Costume swaps: Join together with friends and have a neighborhood "costume swap," instead of buying new ones. And check out Orange County's first countywide Halloween costume swap from noon to 4 p.m. today at the Phoenix Club in Anaheim. For each costume you bring, you can pick another costume, be entered in a drawing, plus receive a 50-percent off ticket for the Oktoberfest celebration at the club.
- Big Lots: Stop by Big Lots the last few days before Halloween. The store's awesome selection of Halloween décor and props will be picked over, but it will also be marked down daily until after the big day.

Children's Karneval welcomes costumes and silliness

Dig out your favorite time-period costumes for the German Karneval, which is in full swing at the Phoenix Club in Anaheim, and don't miss the Kinderkarneval.

This year's Children's Karneval Party theme is "Karneval in Outer Space." The Youth Dance Group will perform traditional dances at the event, which will also feature games, prizes and more.

Best-costume awards will be given.

"This is a wonderful tradition the Phoenix Club has upheld for over 40 years," said Karneval Club President Holger Claus. "We are glad so many local children join in every year for this fun event."

"It's all about being funny and silly," said Heidi Davis, Youth Dance Group leader and one of the organizers of Kinderkarneval. "Karneval is a time when the world is topsy-turvy and anything goes."

A German Karneval coincides with Mardi Gras, but is much more like Oktoberfest (with a little bit of Halloween thrown in).

In the 16th century, jesters were kings and kings were jesters for the day. Now, the event is much more about a fun costume party.

If you go

When: Doors open at noon Sunday

Where: Phoenix Club, 1340 S. Sanderson Ave., Anaheim

How much: Admission is free

Karneval events: Additional adult events will take place Saturday and Feb. 16

Friday is national Wear Red Day, and the American Heart Association (AHA) urges everyone to don the color to show their support of the fight against heart disease, one of the leading causes of death for women in this country. On a lighter note, the Entertainment and Tourism Club at Cal State Fullerton is hosting a comedy-show fund-raiser in honor of Go Red for Women. Dubbed Cultural Comedy Chaos, the event features comedians of different ethnicities, including headliner Loni Love (as seen on Chelsea Lately). Wearing red is encouraged, but if it's laundry day, the organization is selling red ribbons for just 50 cents each. Proceeds from the evening will benefit the AHA. Heart disease is no laughing matter, but the Cultural Comedy Chaos fund-raiser is a cleverly entertaining way to raise awareness about this very serious issue.

Alex's Lemonade Fundraiser

Students of Robert C. Fisler School in Fullerton became heroes for Alex this Thanksgiving by raising funds and awareness for Alex's Lemonade Stand Foundation (ALSF).

The campaign entitled "Orange County's Lemonade Week" was organized and executed by CSUF Public Relations students. It served to spread awareness for ALSF in Orange County and to raise money to find a cure for childhood cancer.

ALSF founder Alexandra Scott was a cancer patient herself and only 4 years old when she started raising money for childhood cancer research. After raising one million dollars, she passed away four years later, but her legacy lives on today as children all around the country raise money for Alex's cause.

Earlier this month, CSUF students presented Alex's story and the "Orange County's Lemonade Week" to more than 700 students of Fisler School. The college students explained how Fisler students can make a difference even at their young age to help others. They were encouraged to be thankful for their own health and help those not as fortunate.

Students held "Orange County's Lemonade Day" at Fisler School. Fisler students created posters and banners for the stands, and they teamed at five stations where parents and classmates eagerly made their donations.

"I had kids crowding my stand before I was even done setting up," said Karla Amador, one of the students organizing the campaign. During the 90-minute fundraiser over $1,000 was raised.

The fundraising goal was to raise $2,500. Donations are still being accepted at <http://www.alexlemonade.org/mypage/78936>.

Celebrate National Princess Week With Real Royalty

Celebrate National Princess Week in style! Bring your whole family with your prince or princess and come out to the Home Depot Center on April 28 to celebrate Queen's Day. Queen's Day is a traditional holiday in the Netherlands, celebrating their actual Queen Beatrix.

In Los Angeles, the Dutch community invites everyone to a fun family event with live music, traditional Dutch games, bouncy house, soccer tournaments, and a flea market. Queen Beatrix and Crown Prince Willem-Alexander will even be there to take family photos! Ok, it's not the actual royalty, but they're look-alikes and your kids will never know the difference.

Children and adults alike may come dressed up as princess (or prince) and queen. The Dutch national color is orange, so dress up in something orange and fun for your best shot to win the Miss Orange pageant. Anyone 12 years and older can be part of the contest and be crowned a Miss Orange. Being right next to Orange County, we think that's perfect!

"Queen's Day is a fun event to teach children about their heritage and another culture in a fun way," says Jeff Keasberry, organizer of the United Netherlands Organizations. "As the United States is celebrating National Princess Week, why not come together as an international community and celebrate real royalty as we're at it?"

Many Americans find their heritage in Europe and most of us are quite aware where our ancestors come from. Whether they came from the Netherlands, Great Britain, Sweden or Belgium, all these countries still today, have royal families. In the Netherlands, they even have three little princesses: Princess Amelia, Princess Alexia and Princess Ariana.

This year will be the last Queen's Day because it's the last year of Queen Beatrix's reign. She will abdicate her reign to her son Willem-Alexander, who will be the Dutch King, along with Princess Maxima. Both will start their reign on April 30, so Queen's Day 2013 really is a farewell to the outgoing Queen.

Tickets for this family-friendly event can be purchased at dutchqueensday.eventbrite.com. Tickets are currently on sale for just $10 per person (kids 12 and under are free). For more information on Queen's Day, pictures and a program of the day, please visit www.dutch-day.com and like their Facebook page to follow the latest news of the event at www.facebook.com/dutchqueensday.

We are giving away a family pack of tickets — two adults and two children tickets — valued at $40. Leave a comment below sharing why you'd like to go to be entered to win. The winner will be chosen at noon on April 24th via random.org.

FREE German Kareneval at the Phoenix Club

Posted by Melodi Steinberg on Jan 30, 2013 in Events, Featured, Uncategorized | 0 comments

Attention all children! Get out your costumes and get ready to have some fun! On Sunday, February 10th the Phoenix Club in Anaheim is hosting the Children's Karneval Party (Kinderkarneval).

Don't worry about being German because Prince Peter and Princess Sophie invite children of all ages to the event! Doors to the festivities will open at 12:00 pm and the entertainment will begin at 1:00pm. Admission is free. This year's theme is "Karneval in Outer Space," but costumes don't have to follow suit. The Youth Dance Group of the Phoenix Club will perform traditional dances and lots of candy, games, music and fun await. Best costumes will be awarded with great prizes, and no child will go home empty-handed.

Kids are encouraged to be funny and silly. They celebrate with silly games, lots of candy and prizes for dressing up. "The Karneval season is a short period of time that comes only once a year—during which we forget the worries of everyday life and just have fun." says Heidi Davis, youth dance group leader and an organizer of the event.

A Family-Friendly OC Oktoberfest!

by: jen

My husband's father (Siegfried!) is from Germany, his mother is from Switzerland and I have some German in me too through mother's side, so a love of Oktoberfest runs in our family!

Those are my two little German girls pictured above. My youngest is wearing her aunt's authentic dirndl from Germany which is over 40 years old! I just LOVE it when I get to put one of them in this get up come October, which has now been passed down from big sister.

Over the years we have tested out many OC Oktoberfest celebrations and have found The Phoenix Club in Anaheim to be home of our very favorite family-friendly event.

Whether you are German or not, this Oktoberfest is SO MUCH FUN, you will want to get your Chicken Dance on and shake your tail feathers like you are!

Open every weekend now through October 28th, every Sunday is family day opening at 11am. On Sundays, they have a bounce haus for the kids and sometimes pony and horse rides too. There is also a large play structure adjacent to the huge Oktoberfest tent, which is awesome for the kiddos, and lots of vendors as well.

And then there is the traditional German fare...beers, brats, sauerkraut, gigantic pretzels, schnitzel, strudels and more...YUM!

My girls LOVE the pretzels that are almost bigger than their heads!

The live Ompapah Band starts up around 1pm. Get ready to raise your glass and sing along! The live entertainment starts off with performances of German folk dancers and other German traditions.

The girls loved sitting up close and watching the dancers.

Once the dancing starts up, a huge dressed up Chicken came on the floor to lead the Chicken Dance. It was absolutely hysterical. I wish I had gotten a picture, but I was out there dancing myself without my camera!

I think it is so fun to do unique things with the family on the weekends and this is one of my favorite Orange County Fall events that I look forward to every year! In fact, we are going back with a group of friends in a couple of weekends!

Admission is $5.00/person for the month of October. Kids under 18 are always free.

Hint: Bring your own 6' banquet type table cloth so you can stake out a good table as "home base." No outside food/beverage permitted though.

Sunday, Oct. 14
12pm to 4pm

The Karneval Club of the Phoenix Club will host Orange County's first Costume Swap on Sunday, October 14th, 2012 from 12 – 4pm to trade your gently used costumes.

For every costume you bring, you will receive 50% off admission to Oktoberfest. Each attendee will also be entered into a drawing for prizes. All leftover costumes will be donated to Orangewood Children's Foundation. For more information on Costume Swap day at Oktoberfest, visit www.anaheimkg.com.

Save Money this Halloween: Orange County
Costume Swap October 14th

Phoenix Club Oktoberfest

Looking to save money this Halloween, here's a great way to do it!

The Karneval Club (German Mardi Gras Club) of the Phoenix Club in Anaheim will host Orange County's first Costume Swap. Please join them on October 14, noon to 4 PM, to trade your slightly-used costumes. "Kids' costumes are expensive and usually outgrown in a year," said Karneval President Holger Claus. "The Karneval Club offers this economic alternative to buying. Swap your costume with someone else's and save some money!"

For every costume you bring, you will not only save money and help the environment, but you will also receive an admissions ticket to the Phoenix Club's Oktoberfest for 50% off and get an idea what Karneval is like. The Oktoberfest is the biggest in California and October 14 is Family Day.

"As you pick out your children's costumes for Halloween, keep in mind that you can use them again come Karneval," said Heidi Davis, one of the Youth Dance Group trainers. Every February, the Karneval Club hosts Kinder Karneval, which is a fun German family tradition and the second Halloween of the year. For more information, click HERE.

All left-over costumes will be donated to the Orangewood Children's Foundation, a local non-profit that benefits children living in foster care and disadvantaged families throughout Orange County. Every Orange County Costume Swap attendee will automatically be entered into a drawing for a chance to win a Karneval Royal Package.

This grand prize includes:

- Complimentary entry to Oktoberfest for your whole family
- Complimentary face painting and front-of-the-line tickets for your children
- $40 in coupons for food and beverage service at Oktoberfest
- A traditional German Beer Stein
- $20 in food and beverage service at Kinder Karneval event in February 2013

As part of the Costume Swap, Heidi Davis will exhibit her custom-made costume collection. Check out what Karneval in Germany looks like – and get an idea of what you could create yourself!

PayleyFest 2013 will Screen 'Big Bang Theory' Panel in Theaters

February 7th, 2013 3:23pm | Tags: season 6, The Big Bang Theory

It's a cause for celebration! For the first time, PaleyFest will broadcast two of its panels to select movie theater audiences across the country – and the 'Big Bang Theory' panel is one of them!

As a part of this year's William S. Paley Television Festival, The Walking Dead and The Big Bang Theory will have their panels broadcast in select movie theaters nationwide.

"PaleyFest is the ultimate TV fan festival that until now, only fans lucky enough to score tickets to the L.A. event could enjoy," said Shelly Maxwell, executive vp of NCM Fathom Events. "Thanks to the Paley Center, now all fans of these popular TV shows can enjoy the festival from their local movie theater as the cast of each show takes part in a live, uncensored and no-holds-barred audience Q&A."

The The Walking Dead panel will be pre-recorded March 1 and screened March 7 at 8 p.m. Confirmed panelists include Andrew Lincoln (Rick Grimes), David Morrissey (The Governor), and Danal Gurira (Michonne), as well as the executive producers of the show.

The Big Bang Theory will have its panel broadcast live March 13 at 7 p.m. PT/10 p.m. ET. The panel will feature a Q&A session with the stars and producers of the show, and fans watching in movie theaters can ask questions live via Twitter. Johnny Galecki (Leonard Hofstadter), Jim Parsons (Sheldon Cooper), Kaley Cuoco (Penny) and creators/executive producers Chuck Lorre, Bill Prady and Steven Molaro are among those who will be present for the event.

Paley Center for Media president and CEO Pat Mitchell said, "Partnering with NCM Fathom Events as part of PaleyFest's landmark 30th Anniversary allows fans of The Walking Dead and The Big Bang Theory to see their favorite television actors and creators, and highlights the Paley Center's continuing effort to bring the fun and excitement of PaleyFest to more and more people."

Tickets for the movie theater broadcasts are on sale Feb. 8 at participating theater box offices and online at www.FathomEvents.com. A list of theater locations and prices can also be found on the site.

Other panelists at this year's PaleyFest include Ryan Murphy, Brad Falchuk, Aaron Sorkin, Sam Waterston, Mindy Kaling, Zooey Deschanel, Connie Britton, Hayden Panettiere, Joel McHale, Alison Brie, Ginnifer Goodwin, Jennifer Morrison, Lauren Graham, and Dax Shepard, to name a few.

PaleyFest kicks off on March 1 at the Saban Theatre in Beverly Hills and runs through March 15.

The 'Big Bang Theory' airs Thursdays, 8/7c on CBS.

How To Brand Your Business Through LinkedIn (Part 1)

I recently listened to Dan Roth, executive editor of LinkedIn, at a PR Week conference. He talked about LinkedIn and how brands can take advantage of it to get a branding edge. This will be a 4-part series about his insights. The first part, this post, will talk about the different properties of LinkedIn and how they work for your brand. The second part will focus on specific tools available on LinkedIn and how brands can take advantage of them. And the third and fourth parts will be focusing on how to create great content and how to ensure it gets shared and seen to propel your brand forward.

What Is LinkedIn?

LinkedIn is a special online platform in that it is a social network, but one for the professional community only. It has been so well received because it serves all industries the same, and it serves as a sleek platform to easily share your resume with the option to integrate portfolio pieces and references. It's a one-stop-shop for every professional or recruiter. However, LinkedIn is so much more than a platform for resumes.

Taking Advantage Of Business Profiles

LinkedIn can and should be used by companies for their "company resume." LinkedIn calls it business pages, and every company should have one. When you add a company to your personal LinkedIn profile, a page for this company gets created and should then be populated. Think of these company profiles as sort of a Facebook page. You can upload pictures, post updates and articles of interest, link to your website or post jobs. This is your company's professional, social online presence come to life. Anyone can follow a company on LinkedIn by following such a profile. Followers will then see this company's updates in their news feed on the homepage. This way, if you keep your company page updated, your followers will continually see your name and hopefully share your updates with their network to expand your reach.

Let's look at LinkedIn's two main approaches to content dissemination and curation.

More Influencer Posts ▸

1. LinkedIn Today

LinkedIn Today has been in place for the last two years of the ten years LinkedIn has existed. The question LinkedIn asked was: Can we marry social and professional attributes? The news feed on your homepage was the answer and it's been working well. More than 1.2 million publishers feed into this stream.

It is a way for individuals and brands to stay in the forefront of people's minds. This tool is designed for anyone and brands should take advantage of it just as much as they take advantage of the Facebook news feed. The advantage of LinkedIn is that users go there specifically to hear from companies, while they go to other social media just to have fun with their friends.

2. LinkedIn Influencer

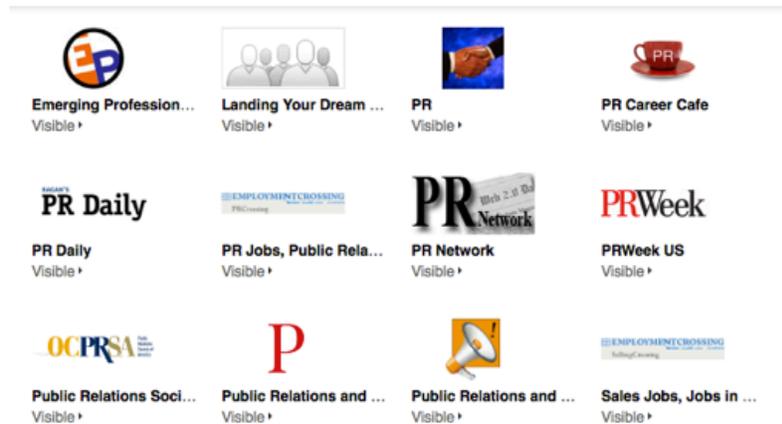

LinkedIn Influencer is a program for selected top performing influencers in various industries. They were selected by LinkedIn because of their business as well as online presence and their ability to write about their professional lives, but also about their personal struggles, successes and failures. The members of this program were chosen to practically teach LinkedIn users how they became so successful so the LinkedIn community could learn and adopt. The program now has 250 influencers. Chances are you follow some of them, not knowing they were part of an official program.

How To Become An Influencer

This program is intentionally exclusive and influencers are not pitchable. LinkedIn finds the influencer, not the other way around. The best way to be integrated into the program is by branding yourself, writing a lot, publishing books, and really knowing your industry inside out. When you can do that (your industry's community at large actually knows you and respects you) and you are also able to write on a personal level, you qualify for the program. This selection process ensures that what the general LinkedIn community reads in high quality. It has been well received; every post by an influencer receives an average of 100 quality comments. Readers offer their own perspective on the topic discussed and it turns into a discussion.

If You're Not An Influencer, Utilize The Comment Section

Your goal does not have to be to become an influencer, but through being part of the conversations within this program, you can get yourself known within the LinkedIn community by your constant presence in the comments section. In that way, you become an influencer on your own, targeting those most interested in the area of your interest.

3. LinkedIn Groups

While Roth did not mention LinkedIn groups in his discussion about the approach to content dissemination, I would like to add this point here. Groups are a wonderful way to push out your messages, as long as you give them a catchy headline and caption. When you push out information through a group, it lands in its members email inbox every morning, or once a week, depending on their selection.

I used to write a professional blog giving resume and interview advice. I now write a lifestyle blog. With my career blog, I took advantage of disseminating my posts through LinkedIn. My current blog does not post content applicable to the business community, so I can't use LinkedIn as a promotional tool. On average, my career blog posts were read by 200% more people than my lifestyle blog posts, just because of referral traffic from LinkedIn. That goes to show that LinkedIn members really are tuned in and are interested in what you have to say if you establish a presence there.

What are your experiences with disseminating content through LinkedIn? What are your successes? What are your failures and how did you turn it around? Let us know in the comments!

Purses And Shoes And Deals, Oh My!

June 27, 2013 · by Anne Pelczar · in Shop Smart · Edit

When visiting any Goodwill of Orange County store, don't forget to check out the purse and shoes sections! It's the first thing I do. What great steals you can find there!

Oh, just think of all the occasions you need shoes for. Work shoes, running shoes, casual shoes, shopping shoes, Saturday night shoes, wedding shoes, beach shoes. Heels, flats, plateaus, sandals, boots, bootlets, close-toed, open-toed. Oh, and the places they'll take you! To the park, to the beach, to Disneyland, downtown, to the mall, to the club, to a restaurant, to the office, to your grandma's house, to your boyfriend's parents' house. I think it's safe to say that you need a lot of shoes – and at Goodwill of Orange County, you can afford them ALL at an average price of $7.99 a pair!

And the purses! Oh the purses... What woman can live without such a portable treasure chest? There are about as many styles of purses as there are styles of shoes. The work purse, the beach purse, the dressy purse, the mommy purse, the Saturday night purse, the Sunday morning purse, the grocery-shopping purse, the going-to-the-movies purse, the day trip purse. Not to mention the clutch, the handbag, the backpack, the shoulder bag and the dressy shopping bag. Who has the money to buy all those different purses? I don't. But when I shop at Goodwill, I certainly do because purses have an average price of just $9.99! Wow!

And here's a Goodwill Pro Shopper tip: If you want to save even more (aka get twice the amount of shoes and purses), Goodwill has a color tag sale every week where ever item with that color tag is an additional 50% off! And if you want to stay up-to-date on what color sale is going on each week, like them on Facebook to get the latest insider alerts!
